Introduction to Skills for Work

An Introduction to Skills for Work is a skills based learning programme for young people around the ages of 10-14 years old depending on the curriculum. The aim of the programme is to teach pupils to understand what a 'skill', a 'strength' or a 'personal quality' is and how these may be used in the future for work.

This Programme will develop confidence and resilience in your pupils whilst helping them to understand what skills and strengths are and how these are considered at work.

The programme was developed by a group of experienced teachers who know too well how busy life as a teacher is and so we have developed a programme for you which is simple to follow and provides everything but you!

This programme initiates the process in the development of 'Career Management Skills'. These have been described as:

'The skills, knowledge and self awareness to develop aspirational career aims and the confidence to take actions in one's life, time and again, as career opportunities arise and as work and learning options change.'

Education Scotland, Building the Curriculum 4

Since 2004, the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), the European Commission and the World Bank has promoted the benefits of all young people developing career management skills.

This learning forms a part of a broader skills development agenda which aims to empower young people to understand more about themselves and their strengths. These skills are recognised internationally as a series of competencies or capabilities which will assist young people in their learning, life and work.

It should be highlighted that these competencies can be developed anywhere – at home, at school, college or university or on the sports field. Generally they include:

Knowledge

Things a young person knows.

Skills

Things a young person can do.

Attitude

Ways a young person feels and behaves.

Content

The Introduction to Skills for Work Programme addresses key competencies, knowledge, skills and attitude, in three modules.

Module 1:
An introduction to skills and strengths.

Module 2:
Understanding what makes me great.

Module 3:
Making the most of my skills and strengths.

The lessons within each module are sequential as well as being flexible and easily repeatable if you need to do so.

Pupils will be encouraged to take their work home and to include their parents and guardians in their discussions.

Our aim is to build their confidence and resilience in knowing who they are and what skills and strengths make them who they are. We also relate skills and strengths to the workplace giving an early look at how these help people make career choices and how skills and strengths enable people to do their jobs. This work will lay the foundations for further development in secondary and tertiary education.

We believe that working with young people in this way will build everlasting skills and strengths that will enable and empower them to make better and more appropriate decisions.

Cumbernauld Primary School

"The children in my class thoroughly enjoyed the whole experience. I particularly found the more reluctant learners responded very well to the active nature of the tasks. The resources were clear. The skills log helped to ensure all children had time to reflect and take a role in the group."

Would you recommend the programme?

"Yes definitely. I feel this was really relevant to their age and stage in P7 as they move on with their transition. It really allowed some of my not so confident pupils to explore and discuss their own personal skills. I think it is excellent for raising their self-esteem. I would definitely use this again."

Further comment

"Children are more aware of the skills needed for different jobs. Children were all focused on the task and enjoyed the competition aspect of the work."

Cumbernauld Academy

"It allowed pupils to further develop their skills in relation to working environments. They are a lot more aware of the recruitment process and the need to sell themselves to employers"

"The pupils remained positive throughout the project. They improved their team work and research skills. They also learnt interview skills that will enable them to secure jobs when leaving school."

Would you recommend the programme?

"Absolutely. Pupils now need to develop skills for working life in order to be able to compete in competitive job markets. This course contains building blocks to allow them to start working on skill development."
